

Plenary Speaker Biographical Sketches

Jay W. Lee, MD, MPH, FAAFP
Family Physician • Executive • Change Agent
Chief Medical Officer, Share Our Selves

Jay W. Lee, MD, MPH, FAAFP: A dynamic, visionary physician executive with over a decade of experience leading and innovating in family medicine and primary care delivery systems, Dr. Lee currently serves as Chief Medical Officer at Share Our Selves, a federally-qualified health center in Orange County, CA, and the recipient of the Primary Care Collaborative's 2020 Advanced Primary Care Practice Award (<https://www.pccpc.org/2020/11/30/primary-care-collaborative-presents-advanced-primary-care-practice-award>). After graduating from the Program in Human Biology at Stanford University, Jay worked for a non-governmental organization in post-war rural northern El Salvador supporting local physicians, organizing public health projects, and growing his hair long before returning stateside for medical school at the University of Southern California and family medicine residency training at Long Beach Memorial Medical Center. He then worked at community health centers in southern California and Boston, where he earned his Masters of Public Health at Harvard University with an emphasis in Health Policy and Management. Dr. Lee co-founded the Family Medicine Revolution, a grassroots social media brand (#FMRvolution) giving the power of telling family medicine's story back to family physicians and building a global community of thought leaders, and was recognized as the California Academy of Family Physicians' 2018 Hero of Family Medicine and 2021 Family Physician of the Year. He is married to a local pediatrician with whom he shares the joys and the challenges of raising 3 children.

John L. Miller, MD

John Miller, M.D., an advocate and supporter of scholarly activity in family medicine resident education, established the Rocky Mountain Family Medicine Research Forum at Saint Anthony Family Medicine Residency in 1992. As a faculty physician, he was respected and admired by residents and colleagues for his humble and tireless championing of scholarly activity. After hosting the research forum for 22 years, Dr. Miller and others at the Saint Anthony Family Medicine Residency collaborated with leaders from the Colorado Association of Family Medicine Residencies (CAFMR) to make the research forum more inclusive of all family medicine residencies in Colorado.

"I'm John Miller. I am married to Kathy Miller, a family physician and formerly on the faculty at Mercy/St. Anthony and the Denver Health/University. I am best known as Kathy's husband. We have 4 children who are grown and employed with benefits. I've been to college (Colorado State University, the University of Colorado School of Medicine, and, currently, Metropolitan State University Denver (math)) and did a residency (University of Colorado - Family Medicine). I have done private practice (Albuquerque, Canon City), Indian Health (Gallup), and residency teaching (Mercy/St. Anthony). I spend most of my time studying trying to keep up with the kids at Metro and washing dishes."

Tamaan Osbourne-Roberts, MD FAAFP DiplABLM
Team Lead Physician, Iora Primary Care

In my work as a change agent, I often hear that the first step in addressing difficult situations is "to separate 'the people' from 'the problem.'" In my experience, it is neither a focus on individuals nor on challenges that institutions seek, but a focus on solutions...and the road to those solutions always seems to run squarely through the center of the human condition. I have long been passionate about both people and problem solving. My career as a family physician, policy leader, storyteller, and consultant has long brought me into situations where a grounded understanding of data, as well as a keen appreciation for the art of diplomacy, are both required in seeking resolutions to various issues. In my work for my patients, my constituents, and my clients, I have learned how to balance these competing concerns, leading to integrated, complex, and personalized solutions for the challenges they face. Along the way, I have acquired substantial skills in public speaking, media relations, program management, board facilitation, and institutional leadership that have proven invaluable in my work, and it is my pleasure to be able to share these skills with others through my career.